THE GETTYSBURG ADDRESS

November 19, 1863
At the Dedication of the Soldiers' National Cemetery in Gettysburg, Pennsylvania

Four score and seven years ago our fathers brought forth on this continent, a new nation, conceived in Liberty, and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal.

Now we are engaged in a great civil war, testing whether that nation, so conceived and so dedicated, can long endure. We are met on a great battle-field of that war. We have come to dedicate a portion of that field, as a final resting place for those who here gave their lives that that nation might live; it is altogether fitting and proper that we should do this.

But, in a larger sense, we are dedicated — we are consecrated — we are hallowed — to the ground on which they stand, who struggled here, have advanced it, have advanced your power and freedom. The world will little note, nor long remember what we say here; but it can never forget what they did here: it is for us the living, rather, to be dedicated to the unfinished work which they who fought here have thus far so nobly advanced. It is for us the living rather than for any dead to dedicate to the great task remaining before us — that from these honored dead we take increased courage to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion; that we here highly resolve that those dead shall not have died in vain — that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom — and that government of the people, by the people, shall not perish from the earth.

Abraham Lincoln

Historical

- Speech to the troops at Tilbury

Speech to the Troops at Tilbury

The text was found in a letter from Leonel Sharp sometime after 1624 to the Duke of Buckingham.

My loving people

We have been persuaded by some that are careful of our safety, to take heed how we commit our selves to armed multitudes, for fear of treachery; but I assure you I do not desire to live to distrust my faithful and loving people. Let tyrants fear. I have always so behaved myself that, under God, I have placed my chiefest strength and safeguard in the loyal hearts and good-will of my subjects; and therefore I am come amongst you, as you see, at this time, not for my recreation and disport, but being resolved, in the midst and heat of the battle, to live and die amongst you all; to lay down for my God, and for my kingdom, and my people, my honour and my blood, even in the dust.

I know I have the body of a weak, feeble woman; but I have the heart and stomach of a king, and of a king of England too, and think foul scorn that Parma or Spain, or any prince of Europe, should dare to invade the borders of my realm; to which rather than any dishonour shall grow by me, I myself will take up arms,

- address to the nation
