Unrivaled Craftsmanship: A Legacy of Excellence

The King Cage Red Queen is a testament to the enduring power of American craftsmanship. Each cage is meticulously hand-welded by skilled artisans in Durango, Colorado, using only the highest quality stainless steel. This unwavering commitment to quality ensures that every Red Queen cage is built to withstand the rigors of the road, season after season.

The signature 3-bolt mounting system of the Red Queen provides an unparalleled level of stability, ensuring that your water bottle remains securely in place, regardless of the terrain or riding conditions. The cage's wide compatibility allows it to accommodate a wide range of bottle sizes, from standard 24-ounce bottles to larger 32-ounce bottles, making it a versatile choice for any cyclist's needs.

A Symphony of Form and Function

Beyond its exceptional durability and functionality, the King Cage Red Queen also captivates with its timeless aesthetic. Its sleek and minimalist design complements any bicycle frame, from classic steel road bikes to modern carbon fiber wonders. The polished stainless steel finish exudes a subtle elegance that adds a touch of sophistication to any riding experience.

The Red Queen's unique shape is not merely a matter of aesthetics; it serves a vital functional purpose. The slightly oversized diameter of the cage allows for easy insertion and removal of your water bottle, even while riding. The open design provides ample airflow, ensuring that your bottle stays cool and refreshing, even on the hottest days.

A Sustainable Choice for Eco-Conscious Cyclists

In an era of increasing environmental awareness, the King Cage Red Queen stands out as a sustainable choice for eco-conscious cyclists. Its durable stainless steel construction ensures a long lifespan, reducing the need for frequent replacements. The cage is also fully recyclable, minimizing its environmental impact at the end of its useful life.

By choosing the King Cage Red Queen, you not only invest in a superior cycling accessory but also make a statement about your commitment to sustainability. You become part of a growing community of cyclists who value quality, durability, and environmental responsibility.
